

THE DAILY CONSTITUTION

VOL. IX.

ATLANTA, GA., SATURDAY MORNING, JANUARY 6, 1877.

NO. 175

Majah Purman.

The Constitution is old enough now to have a cool head and a tranquil temper. We make it a point never to get into a palpitation or to draw one breath longer than another, if we can help it. But there are things that would cause a howl from under the tombstones and it is with one of these that we are concerned this morning.

A inconspicuous blatherskite, named Jordan, has written a letter from Iowa, in which he details at considerable length the sources from which an army would spring, at a word's command, full fledged and armed cap-a-pie to sustain the inauguration of Hayes. Among other statements he makes the following:

"The south could not be relied on to help the northern democrats. They would have their hands full at home. We have an organization among the negroes that would bring them to their feet in a day. They would keep the southern whites busy."

This is worse than twaddle. In the first place, there is no such organization among the negroes. They cannot be brought to their feet in a day, or in a year. They are not going to array themselves against their neighbors.

If they were to do this, it would make very little difference. They would not be apt to give much trouble. One thing is certain: If Mr. Tilden should gain a place, and the southern people should accept an invitation to attend, they would be very apt to be on hand. They will not let a little family row prevent their fulfilling an engagement with a gentleman of Mr. Tilden's standing.

We trust those people who have been misled by Mr. Jordan will find no difficulty in understanding the above. As for Mr. Jordan himself, let him not build very strongly on his gib and gibeous phrases. He might find that his underpinning was given to wobbling.

LONGSTRETT.

Our dispatches state that General Longstreet has gone to New Orleans to take command of the radical militia which is to be used in intimidating the democrats. Really, we pity Longstreet. We have no word of criticism to offer in regard to his course since the war. He is dead to the south and to us—as dead as if he had been sealed up in the catacombs of Egypt a thousand years ago. We choose only to remember him as the brave soldier and patriot marching through the snows of Virginia or breasting the sultry thunder of Gettysburg. The Longstreet who "comes and goes" the New Orleans negroes is a man of another world.

THANK heaven! the theatre of war has been removed from the south to Indiana, and Grant, who evidently thinks he sees a new rebel in the air, is ordering troops to the front. Well, Indiana is a loyal state, and a slight taste of what the south has endured may do other people good. In the meantime, it should not be forgotten that Grant has nothing to lose, but everything to gain.

The difficulty with Polo Jim seems to be that he promised Miss May to refrain from drink, and failed to keep his promise. Miss May, of course, is to be applauded, and she has set an example that every true woman should follow; for verily, when strong drink takes hold of a man somewhere between his stomach and his eyebrow, he makes a very poor husband indeed.

The dispatches—always accurate—say that Miss May and Bennett are still on friendly terms, and then, without giving on time to shed a sigh of relief, goes on to state that Polo Jim and Fred May are about to have a hostile meeting on the banks of Chesapeake Bay. It is to be presumed that Jim will be armed with a polo mallet, and that Fred will carry his usual cowhide.

As the opinion of Hon. Alexander H. Stephens that the action of the supreme court will throw out the electoral vote of Florida. He construes the decision to mean that no legal college met in statu on the day appointed by law, and hence no electoral vote was legally cast. He does not think that congress can now count the vote of either the Tilden or Hayes electors, or order a new election.

HAYES ate a baked apple for supper on Christmas night and dreamed he was president. The only thing that worried him was the howling of Zach Chandler, as he romped around the corridors and on the front steps with nothing on but a red night shirt and a rope corn-plaster. Baked apples are bad.

The Cincinnati Enquirer seems to have fallen out with Murat Halstead. We have long thought that Cincinnati was not the place for the field marshal. His proper field is Saratoga, where he can drink congress water, and from whence send leading editorials to his paper by telegraph.

CONTRARY to Morton's expectations, Senator Kelly, of Oregon, has joined him in demanding the production of telegraphic dispatches sent to Salem during the election excitement. Moxa was playing a little game of blue.

GOV. WADE HAMPTON states that Mackey was not authorized to speak either for him or the democrats of South Carolina. The governor further states that he believes Tilden to have been fairly elected.

The supreme court of Massachusetts has decided that trustees must be amenable to the laws of the state in the matter of observing the Sabbath.

Troops ordered to Indiana! Well, it is only quick doctors who will not like their own medicine. But we warn them beforehand that it is an exceedingly bitter dose—a regular bull-dose.

The Atlanta Daily Constitution

SATURDAY MORNING, JAN. 6, 1877.

UNITING THE OCEANS.

A commission headed by General Humphries was appointed several months ago to report which of the surveyed routes over or near the Isthmus is the best for an interoceanic canal. The report, now in the hands of the president, is a plain business-like document. The Nicaragua route is declared to be by far the best route, the only feasible route, in fact. The elevation to be overcome is only 100 feet. The total distance from Graytown on the Atlantic to Briton on the Pacific is 131 miles, of which 57 miles would be through the lake of Nicaragua and 68 miles by slack-water navigation, leaving only 61 miles of cut canal. Four dams and ten lift-locks would overcome the rise on the Atlantic, and ten lift-locks on the Pacific slope. There are really no great engineering difficulties to be overcome, unless it be the formation of a harbor at Greytown.

The scheme would cost, however, $100,000,000, more or less; and it is therefore proposed that the canal shall be constructed by the various maritime nations, so that the expense will not be severely felt by any of them, and so that it shall be held neutral in case of war. It is said that the governments of Great Britain, Germany and Russia have already intimated their readiness to participate in a pecuniary point of view. Nothing of a definite character has been received from France, Italy and Austria. Spain is willing, but unable to take a moneyed interest in the work. The entire correspondence will be laid before congress soon, with a special message, in which the president will urge the taking of the necessary steps to begin the great enterprise.

Soon after Gen. Humphries' report was completed, Dr. Adam Cardenas, a special commissioner of the Nicaraguan government, arrived in Washington for the purpose of promoting the work.

The diplomatic questions incident to the construction of the canal have been put into a treaty which will soon be transmitted to the senate for ratification. It concedes the neutrality of a wide belt of territory along the canal, and also of a great range of seacoast adjacent to the proposed harbors. The harbors of Graytown and Briton are declared free. All the leading maritime nations of the globe are to be invited to participate and share in the construction of the work; and to enter into treaty stipulations to that effect.

The canal is to be opened to all parties to its construction on equal terms.

The president is said to be an enthusiastic advocate of the project. He is disposed to turn his Sunday flow of wisdom in that direction. He really knows as little about it as he does about the constitution or the laws of his country; but the fact that he is willing to promote anything besides the schemes of the Chamberlain gang of conspirators, even if it be as a blind, relieves the situation.

We know of no reason why the canal should not be built. Ships could traverse it in three days, whereas nine days are required to double Cape Horn. It would save 1,000 miles of sea travel over even the Darien route. But such a canal is a dream that will not materialize, if revolutionary expedients are to put in power the defeated candidate to the destruction of constitutional liberty, the disgust of the people and the creation of a pervading sense of uneasiness and insecurity. Justice and law must first pave the way for the execution of such a magnificent work.

GEORGIA IN CONGRESS.

Our resume closed with the proceedings of Wednesday, December 20, and we take up the record from that date.

No mention of Georgia business, or of the participation of Georgia's representatives in debate, occurs in the Congressional Record until we reach the number for the 23d ultimo, when Mr. Norwood unsuccessfully attempted to get up a private bill for the relief of Robert Ervin, who lost his opportunity to go before the court of claims through the laches of his attorney, Mr. Wright objected, and the bill was not taken up.

On the 30th ultimo Mr. Gordon presented a memorial from the state government of South Carolina. After some objections from Mr. Morton, he obtained unanimous consent to offer a resolution relating to the subject, which was ordered printed.

During the short and thinly-attended session in holiday week, the Record shows that the Georgia members and senators were generally in their seats.

This brings our notes down to Wednesday of the present week, when business was fully resumed, and both sides began to prepare for the heavy work of the coming two months.

The democratic state central committee of Missouri decided on Wednesday that it is unnecessary to hold a state convention, but they declared the willingness and purpose of the democratic of the state to support whatever just plan may be authoritatively adopted for the solution of the presidential difficulties that threaten the peace and welfare of the country.

We find the following item in the Washington Union of the 3rd instant: What is to be done with an interview with Senator Norwood, of Georgia, was published in a newspaper of that state, and was read in Atlanta, December 14. Senator Norwood had left the city three days prior to that date, and the writer of the interview is said to have left here one time previous.

This doubtless relates to "Gath's," famous edition of "Norwood on Hill."

Mr. D. WYATT AIKEN announces that the Rural Carolinian, a monthly agricultural magazine, has become one of the things that were. Its unexpired subscriptions have been transferred to the Charleston News and Courier, in which Mr. Aiken will hereafter conduct an "agricultural department."

The Chattanooga Commercial, a radical morning paper, has gone where the woodbine twines. The people of Chattanooga will not miss it. The Times now has a field commentator with its brightness and general excellence.

THE SITUATION AT COAL CREEK.

The Knoxville Tribune of the 4th instant corrects its statements of the previous day:

"It seems we were somewhat mistaken in our broad statement that the strike of the miners was at an end. Our informants were two gentlemen interested in one of the mines, and who said they fully expected the miners would go to work Tuesday. Since me, we came over with the train Tuesday, informed our reporter that several of the 'head men,' said that morning, that the whole striking force would go to work on Monday. We could get no good news, when we got home. Then, however, the information that at least portion of the Black Diamond company's men would resume that day. This is the situation as far as we have been able to make out. The probability is that, however, we may have missed the exact date of resumption; the fact will soon be realized, if it has not been already."

A CORRESPONDENT inquires what Mr. M. L. McLean, of Atlanta, says in regard to the coal strike.

"I am told that Mr. McLean says the strike will expire with the year 1877."

For the position of state librarian of North Carolina, with a salary of $600, the newly-elected governor has no less than fifty-five applications.

LODGE SALISBURY, who tried unsuccessfully to intimidate the miners, particularly the black miners, was come over with the train Tuesday, informed our reporter that several of the 'head men,' said that morning, that the whole striking force would go to work on Monday. The Chronicle, published in the same city and on the same day, regards the situation as serious, so far as even home consumption is concerned. It says there are hopes that the miners will soon go to work, but it adds: "Owing to the condition of the Tuhie: 'What energy can be expected of a people with no hope to live on?'

The Buffalo Express says the oldest men of the scope on record is the fund held by the miners for their families.

LODGE PALMERSON once said, speaking of the Tuhie: "What energy can be expected of a people with no hope to live on?"

The young man who goes serenading the miners would resume that day. This is the situation as far as we have been able to make out. The probability is that, however, we may have missed the exact date of resumption; the fact will soon be realized, if it has not been already."

LODGE PALMERSON once said, speaking of the Tuhie: "What energy can be expected of a people with no hope to live on?"

The young man who goes serenading the miners would resume that day. This is the situation as far as we have been able to make out. The probability is that, however, we may have missed the exact date of resumption; the fact will soon be realized, if it has not been already."

A CORRESPONDENT inquires what Mr. M. L. McLean, of Atlanta, says in regard to the coal strike.

"I am told that Mr. McLean says the strike will expire with the year 1877."

For the position of state librarian of North Carolina, with a salary of $600, the newly-elected governor has no less than fifty-five applications.

LODGE SALISBURY, who tried unsuccessfully to intimidate the miners, particularly the black miners, was come over with the train Tuesday, informed our reporter that several of the 'head men,' said that morning, that the whole striking force would go to work on Monday. Since me, we came over with the train Tuesday, informed our reporter that several of the 'head men,' said that morning, that the whole striking force would go to work on Monday. We could get no good news, when we got home. Then, however, the information that at least portion of the Black Diamond company's men would resume that day. This is the situation as far as we have been able to make out. The probability is that, however, we may have missed the exact date of resumption; the fact will soon be realized, if it has not been already."

The Chronicle, published in the same city and on the same day, regards the situation as serious, so far as even home consumption is concerned. It says there are hopes that the miners will soon go to work, but it adds: "Owing to the condition of the Tuhie: 'What energy can be expected of a people with no hope to live on?'

The Buffalo Express says the oldest men of the scope on record is the fund held by the miners for their families.

HER ANSWER.

All along she held my right hand; I had heat; blazed in my eyes that I could not bear; moved apart; found my hand in good right grasping, and I have to morrow? early! Then adieu! I went in toward the window. Onward passed, and I waited, still I listened: All my soul was buried in the eyes that met her As she spoke, the stars with measureless admiration gazed on her. She turned her stamp in broad daylight, bared, showed all the gladness, all the joy born, of her hair; glistened where her mouth in soft compliance bowed; and I said, "I will have more than you." After taking two bottles of your Consumptive-Cure and Lung Balsam she has been able to ride horseback ten miles to Rutledge and take care to Newman, etc., and now consider herself entirely cured after using the sweet bottle. Yours truly, A. WILLIAMS

FOR ORDINARY OF DEKALB COUNTY, L. A. SINGER, M.D., practices his and efficient Cures, which have served the people so faithfully for the last four years, and who has had ten years experience in said office, at the ensuing January election: negro—dwarf MUNNY CITY CITIZENS.

TO THE VOTERS OF THE 129TH DISTRICT G.M.

I respectfully announce that I am a candidate for re-election to the office of County Sheriff of Dekalb County. For the last month I have been confined to my bed, and have not been able to attend to my duties, but have been unable to make any promises to my friends, as I have no electioneering promises to make; as to what I will do if elected, but simply stand up to my past official actions. I point to the record I have made in discharging the duties of the office, and that I am willing to be judged by the people.

After the experience I have had in the office I am not qualified to hold it longer, but I offer the position, hoping that my fellow citizens will, on next Saturday, give me their suffrage and support.

The election will be held at the office of Justice of Peace, No 16 Whitehall street, Saturday, the 2nd of January, 1877. V. L. STITTLE
